Overview

Robert J. Schoenberg is the lead partner in Riker Danzig's Intellectual Property Group. He has represented numerous companies in patent, copyright and trademark infringement matters as well as unfair competition and false advertising disputes. Bob is successful in obtaining trademark registrations for his clients. He has handled more than 20 patent infringement matters, including a major victory for an online retailer in which his client was the only one of four defendants that the jury agreed did not infringe the patent.

Bob has particular expertise in matters involving the computer industry and assists a wide range of clients with protecting valuable contract and property rights arising from the development, licensing, and distribution of computer hardware and software. His range of clients includes leading
