

Environmental Chair Judges National Environmental Law Moot Court Competition

Dennis J. Krumholz, chair of Riker Danzig's Environmental Practice, will be serving as a judge in the Quarterfinal Rounds of the National Environmental Law Moot Court Competition hosted by Pace Law School. The 2014 moot court competition takes place February 20th - 22nd at the Law School in White Plains, NY. Dennis has served as a judge in varying rounds of the competition for more than a dozen years.

Law students from around the country gather at Pace to compete in the National Environmental Law Moot Court Competition. Since its start in 1989, it is now the largest interschool moot court competition of any kind under one roof, regularly attracting in excess of 200 competitors from diverse law schools.

The competition provides a rigorous academic experience for the participants, testing skills in appellate brief writing and oral advocacy, involving issues drawn from real cases, and providing first-hand experience in environmental litigation.
