

Riker Danzig Establishes Fellowship at Fordham University

Riker Danzig has instituted an Environmental Law Fellowship at Fordham University School of Law, to be awarded each year to a second-year law student with a strong interest in the study and practice of environmental law. Dennis J. Krumholz, head of Riker Danzig's Environmental Law Practice and Gary E. Walsh, former chair of Riker Danzig's Recruitment Committee and Fordham Law graduate ('77) presented the Fellowship to its first recipient, Terry Kim (center). Terry, of Paramus, is on Fordham's Board of the Environmental Law Advocates and serves as an assistant to Professor Sheila Foster, researching urban environmental issues.
