Environmental associate Matthew A. Karmel was quoted extensively in an October 25, 2019 VillageGreenNJ.com article regarding composting efforts in New Jersey. In the article, entitled “Local South Orange-Maplewood Composters See Growth in the Long Haul,” Matt notes that state lawmakers and regulators are taking steps to change the composting landscape, which is good news for composting advocates. He cautions that regulatory changes could take years, but legislative movement could affect the industry sooner. See Composting to read the full article.
